LETTER FROM THE PUBLISHERS

This issue marks a very special milestone for us—our first full year as owners and publishers of Busy Bee Trader. When we first took on this adventure, we knew we were stepping into something meaningful, but looking back, we could not have imagined just how much joy, learning, and connection the year would bring.

Our journey with Busy Bee grew out of our love for small businesses. For over five years, we ran our own vendor market filled with antiques, vintage pieces, artisan goods, and boutique treasures. That market began with a simple goal: to give small business owners a place to sell their products in a brick-and-mortar setting. Purchasing Busy Bee felt like the natural next step—an opportunity to continue that mission on a larger scale, helping even more small businesses across the Southeast connect with shoppers, travelers, and one another.

Over the past year, Busy Bee has been our ticket to new experiences. We've taken day trips to visit advertisers, discovering towns we'd never visited before. We also set out on three longer journeys—including a five-day trip across Tennessee with our kids and my dad. That trip holds some of our favorite memories: exploring new places together, meeting shop owners face-to-face, and hearing their surprise (and delight) that we made the journey just to see them. It reminded us that Busy Bee is more than a publication—it's a bridge between people, places, and passions.

Of course, balancing it all—publishing Busy Bee, running our store, and raising a family—has had its challenges. But the benefits far outweigh the busy days. Our family has gained so many memories and so much perspective from these travels. Even our kids and my dad now ask, "Where are we going next?" They love seeing how each store has its own unique personality, and we love watching customers light up when they discover those hidden gems.

Along the way, we've tried new things with Busy Bee to better serve both readers and advertisers. From social media features like Let's Get Social to fun additions like our Busy Bee game, we've aimed to keep things fresh and engaging. This year, we also expanded our online presence, sharing daily posts on Facebook and Instagram and weekly reminders about advertisers' events—helping spread the word and encourage people to shop, attend, and support small businesses.

As we look ahead to year two, we're excited about broadening Busy Bee's scope even further. We want to introduce readers to not only antique shops and markets, but also the cafés, coffee shops, art galleries, independent bookstores, and unique regional experiences that make a trip memorable. Destination shopping is more than a purchase—it's the whole day you build around it. We'd love for Busy Bee to be part of planning those adventures.

And we don't want to do it alone. If you're passionate about connecting with small businesses, we'd love to add more sales reps to our team. If you're a reader with a favorite town, store, or event, we'd love to hear your suggestions. Busy Bee has always been about community, and your voices are a vital part of shaping where we go next.

Thank you for welcoming us into this industry, for supporting our advertisers, and for sharing in the journey. It's been a whirlwind of a first year—full of new faces, places, and lessons—and we can't wait to see what the next year brings. Here's to more adventures, more discoveries, and most of all, more connections.

With gratitude,
Brandon & Melody Miles
Publishers, Busy Bee Trader

COUNTRY TRADITIONS: A HOLIDAY DESTINATION IN ARDMORE

For years, Donna Thomas has welcomed shoppers to her beloved store, Country Traditions, a charming red barn shop located beside her home in Ardmore, Alabama. Built by her husband as a labor of love, the barn is now filled with Donna's carefully curated selection of country primitives and décor. A longtime Busy Bee advertiser, Donna has earned a reputation for offering high-quality, unique furniture and accessories that bring warmth and timeless style to any home.

Inside Country Traditions, customers will discover Town & Country furniture, braided rugs, primitive antiques, greenery, lighting, and seasonal accents. Every corner of the barn reflects Donna's eye for detail and her love for creating spaces that feel both beautiful and welcoming.

This fall, Country Traditions will take a short break—closing from October 16 through November 13—to prepare for one of their most anticipated events of the year. When the doors reopen, it will be for the Christmas Open House on Saturday, November 15, from 9am to 4pm. Guests are invited to enjoy refreshments, special discounts, and a festive atmosphere brimming with holiday inspiration.

The barn will be transformed with trees, ornaments, wreaths, candles, snowmen, Santas, battery candles, pictures, throws, runners, and more—everything you need to bring Christmas cheer into your home. Shoppers can expect the same fine-quality pieces and one-of-a-kind finds that make Country Traditions such a beloved destination.

Country Traditions is the perfect place to find inspiration and fill all your decorating needs for Christmas. Make plans to visit them at 27578 Main Street in Ardmore on November 15!

12 slider buns or Hawaiian rolls
1 ½ c shredded coleslaw mix
¼ c mayonnaise
1 T apple cider vinegar
1 T finely diced pickled jalapenos
Salt and pepper to taste
Butter for toasting rolls

Mix shredded chicken with hot honey in a bowl until fully coated.
In a separate bowl, combine coleslaw mix, mayo, vinegar, jalapenos, salt, and pepper.

PEDDLING IN THE HILLS:

A Day of Wine, Music, and Timeless Finds

Accents & Antiques of Columbia, TN, together with Natchez Hills Vineyard & Winery, is bringing a new kind of gathering to Middle Tennessee this fall. Their inaugural Peddling in the Hills festival will be held on Saturday, October 4, from 10am to 5pm, at the vineyard in Hampshire, TN—a setting as rich in history as it is in beauty.

For more than 20 years, Accents & Antiques has been a favorite stop for treasure hunters, with two floors filled with antiques, vintage goods, home décor, and eclectic flea market finds. Since taking ownership in 2020, Angie and Robert Pease have infused the shop with even more variety, incorporating talented local vendors and makers. Angie's passion for old and unique finds stretches back to childhood weekends spent exploring junk stores with her grandmother in nearby Hohenwald, fueling her dream of one day hosting an event like this.

That dream becomes reality with Peddling in the Hills, a free, family-friendly artisan and antique festival cohosted by Accents & Antiques and Natchez Hills Vineyard & Winery. Guests can enjoy live music, sip wine, and stroll through booths brimming with antiques, vintage pieces, handmade goods, and artistic creations.

The vineyard itself is part of the charm. Tucked just south of Nashville along the Natchez Trace, Natchez Hills Vineyard & Winery is a boutique, family-owned vineyard now operated by Mike and Jill Webster—lifelong Middle Tennessee natives with a passion for community, craftsmanship, and Southern hospitality, and former owners of Accents & Antiques. With scenic vineyard views, old-world winemaking, and a welcoming patio perfect for sipping a glass, Natchez Hills offers the ideal backdrop for a day of shopping and relaxation.

Visitors can expect more than just shopping; this is an experience designed for the whole family. Parents can relax with a curated flight or bottle of Natchez Hills' small-batch wine, kids can play, and everyone can enjoy the blend of music, fresh air, and local talent that makes Middle Tennessee so special.

Join Accents & Antiques and Natchez Hills Vineyard & Winery on Saturday, October 4, from 10am to 5pm, for a day of connection, discovery, and celebration at Peddling in the Hills.

FOR THE LOVE OF AMBER GLASS

by Terry Lea, Murfreesboro, Tennessee

Amber-hued glass has been around for centuries and for good reason—the tinted glass helps block UV rays, which is why we see so many medicine bottles in this color. From the 1940s through the 1970s, colored glass items (including “Carnival” and “Depression” glass) resurged in popularity. As a result, you can find many patterns of dishware, glassware, and more, ranging from pale yellows to rich browns.

Especially in the fall, these pieces add rich warmth to our tables and decor. But what can you do with those odds-and-ends pieces you’ve collected and stored in a cabinet?

If you know us, you know we’re fans of mix-and-match, especially with vintage items. If you’re lucky enough to have an entire set of dishes or glasses in a single pattern, you’re fortunate—you can use them as a set or mix in other pieces.

But you’re more likely to have a few hand-me-downs that survived years of use in your parents’ or grandparents’ homes. Or you’ve hunted through estate sales, antique shops, and thrift stores and curated a small collection that you treasure... but you don’t really know how to showcase them in your home. If you’re in that boat, here are some ideas you can implement to use those unmatched pieces.

1. Glass Jugs and Bottles

Medicine and chemicals were (and some still are) stored in amber glass to protect and preserve their shelf life. A few of these bottles and jugs can be grouped and gathered on a shelf, a mantel, or down the center of your table—add some fall stems and branches and you have an instant centerpiece.

And don’t be too quick to tuck them away when the holidays arrive—as the last photo below shows, you can incorporate dried fruit and evergreens to make a stunning holiday display.

2. Dishware and Glassware

You don’t need to have full place settings to grace your table with some amber glass—sprinkle in what you have with complementing or contrasting colors to create a beautiful fall table.

3. Beautiful Bathroom Storage

We couldn’t close without pointing out the most logical place to use amber bottles and jars is in the bathroom. Add a pump lid to make that bottle into a hand soap, lotion, or shampoo dispenser. Use short amber jars with wide mouths for cotton pads, Q-tips, makeup brushes, and more.

Terry Lea and Sherri Brown were flea-market-going friends before they made their shared hobby into a full-fledged business by opening Re-Invintage in Murfreesboro, Tenn. Be sure to check out all their fantastic finds at 3781 Franklin Rd., Murfreesboro, TN.

TREND & TRADITION

Gustavian Style: Why Swedish Furniture is the Antique Trend to Watch

Each month in “Trend & Tradition,” we will explore the styles making a comeback—or sticking around for good—in the world of antique and vintage décor. Whether it’s a classic piece getting a modern twist or a fresh way to style a timeworn favorite, we’ll show you how old and new can live beautifully together.

When you hear “Swedish furniture,” your mind might go straight to flat-packed boxes and meatballs, but this trend is a whole different story. Gustavian furniture, with its regal lines and weathered elegance, is nothing like its modern counterparts. If you’ve been craving a fresh update that still feels timeless, allow us to introduce your new design crush: Gustavian furniture. This dreamy Swedish style—equal parts refined and relaxed—is making a big comeback in homes across the U.S., and it’s showing up in antique stores and vendor markets more than ever.

So What Is Gustavian Furniture?

Gustavian style originated in late 18th-century Sweden, inspired by French neoclassicism but with a Nordic twist. Think clean lines, fluted legs, and subtle curves, like if Marie Antoinette went minimalist. You’ll often see light gray or white-washed finishes, understated carving, and linen or hemp upholstery. The look is elegant but not fussy, and it plays beautifully with both modern and traditional interiors.

What to Look for While You Shop

When browsing antique malls or vendor markets, keep your eye out for these Gustavian calling cards:

- Light-painted finishes: soft grays, pale blues, and muted creams
- Turned or fluted legs on chairs and dressers
- Subtle carved floral or ribbon details
- Tapered feet and original brass hardware

Don’t worry if a piece has a little wear; Gustavian charm comes with age. That authentic patina is part of what makes it so appealing. If you spot a piece that’s solid and well-built but needs a little love, talk to your local refinisher or grab a brush and get creative.

Easy Ways to Add Gustavian Flair to Your Home

Not quite ready to go full Stockholm palace? Here are a few low-pressure ways to bring this look into your space:

- Start small. A single Gustavian nightstand or console table can instantly elevate a room.
- Mix and match. Pair a Gustavian chair with your modern desk or use a painted sideboard in a rustic kitchen.
- Layer textures. Add linen pillows, a faded rug, or a simple ceramic lamp to soften the space.

Play with contrast. These pale pieces look especially striking against warm wood floors or darker walls.

The best part? Gustavian furniture doesn’t scream “themed room,” it whispers charm and grace. It’s a style that blends in while still turning heads.

Where to Hunt

Vendors who specialize in European imports or curated vintage are a great place to start. But you’ll also find Gustavian-style gems scattered throughout your favorite vendor malls, estate sales, and regional antique shows—just look for pieces with elegant lines and a weathered Nordic palette. Chances are you’ll spot some Gustavian influence tucked into the booths of Busy Bee Trader advertisers.

So next time you’re out antiques shopping, channel your inner Swedish decorator. Whether it’s a graceful mirror or a petite chest of drawers, a little Gustavian touch might be just what your home is waiting for.

THE RIDGE IS READY TO SPARKLE THIS HOLIDAY SEASON

One of the things we love most about our work is getting to visit places that are full of life, personality, and heart—and Mercantile at the Ridge in East Ridge, Tennessee, is exactly that. From the moment you walk in this Chattanooga favorite, you can feel the energy of so many creative vendors coming together under one roof. Antiques, vintage treasures, boutique clothing, home décor, and locally made goods all blend to create a shopping experience that's as unique as it is welcoming.

Right now, the Ridge is dressed for the season with plenty of fall décor and festive touches that make it a joy to wander through. Everywhere you turn, there's something to catch your eye and bring a little autumn charm into your home. And just when you think it can't get any better, the countdown to the holidays begins. By the time their Christmas Open House arrives on November 1-2, the store will be fully transformed into a holiday wonderland, ready to kick off the season in style.

This year's Christmas Open House will be one to remember! The Ridge is giving away multiple gift certificates totaling over $500, hosting a live radio remote on Saturday with even more giveaways from the station, and offering great sales throughout the store. It's the perfect way to start your holiday shopping while enjoying a festive community atmosphere.

Of course, we can't forget to mention Beyond the Garden Gate Tea Room, tucked inside the Ridge. It's the perfect place to pause, enjoy a cup of tea, and soak in the atmosphere before heading back out to shop.

We know you'll love your time at Mercantile at the Ridge, whether you're gathering a few cozy fall pieces now or planning your trip for the Open House. You'll want to visit again and again, and we're so excited to feature them on this month's cover of Busy Bee Trader!

A FRESH CANVAS FOR CLEVELAND: DYE CREEK FINE ARTS FESTIVAL DEBUTS THIS OCTOBER

This fall, an inspiring tradition is being thoughtfully renewed in the heart of Cleveland, Tennessee—one that invites visitors to slow down, soak in beauty, and connect with artists whose work is as thoughtful as it is stunning. On Saturday, October 11, downtown Cleveland will welcome the revitalized Dye Creek Fine Arts Festival, a carefully curated event dedicated exclusively to fine art.

Held on the historic grounds of the Old Woolen Mill, the festival promises an experience that is both elevated and deeply rooted in place. Once a working textile mill along the winding waters of Dry Creek, the site now lends its industrial charm and artistic energy to an event that honors craftsmanship, creativity, and community.

But this is not your average arts and crafts fair. The team behind the festival—led by the Art is Here Partnership, in collaboration with Visit Cleveland TN and the ArtHouse Project—has made it clear: this is a fine art festival. Every artist featured has been juried and hand-selected, with an emphasis on originality, technical excellence, and creative vision. The result is a thoughtful mix of regional and national talent working in painting, sculpture, printmaking, photography, fiber arts, ceramics, and more.

Set against the mill's red brick backdrop, festivalgoers will explore gallery-style tents filled with museum-quality work. It's the kind of event where you might meet a painter whose landscapes make you feel something in your bones or watch a sculptor coax form out of clay right before your eyes.

The name "Dye Creek" itself carries a bit of local lore, born from the days when children noticed the nearby creek changing color, thanks to the dyes used in the mill. Today, it's a fitting symbol for the creativity that flows through Cleveland's growing arts scene: unexpected, vibrant, and full of life.

For those who collect fine art or simply appreciate it, the Dye Creek Fine Arts Festival offers a rare opportunity to discover new work, meet the makers behind it, and purchase pieces you won't find anywhere else. This event invites you to find something meaningful—and to bring beauty home with you.

The event runs from 10 am to 5 pm and is free to attend, making it an easy and accessible outing for art lovers, collectors, and curious wanderers alike. More than just a festival, Dye Creek is a celebration of how art can bring a community together, honor its past, and shape its future. It's about connection: between artist and viewer, history and place, inspiration and expression.
