HAVE YOU SPOTTED THE BUSY BEE?

Congratulations to our October winner, Sylvia Cochran! Sylvia spotted the Busy Bee and picked up her copy of Busy Bee Trader at Sheffield Antique Mall in Collierville, Tennessee.
Way to go, Sylvia!

Want to play along? Here's how it works:

- The Busy Bee (just like the graphic shown here) will be hidden inside one of the ads in each issue of Busy Bee Trader.

- When you find it, email us at findthebee@busybeetrader.com with your name and the location where you picked up your copy.

- The first reader to send in the correct answer will receive a special shout-out in the next issue.

Thank you for faithfully reading and for making
Busy Bee Trader part of your month.
Happy hunting!

LETTER FROM THE PUBLISHERS

It's hard to believe it, but Thanksgiving is just around the corner. As the holiday season has neared, we've been thinking about just how much charm and character local shops and events bring to their communities. Storefronts, market booths and antique malls each tell their story, shaped by the people who pour their creativity and hard work into every display. Together, they create the kind of welcoming spaces where neighbors gather, travelers linger, memories are made and one-of-a-kind treasures are found.

This month's issue celebrates that spirit. On our cover, the Tennessee Military Collectors Association's fall relics show honors the history and heritage that connect us across generations. Inside, you'll find a feature on Four Sisters Antiques and Vintage and their festive holiday events—proof that small retailers know how to make the season sparkle. Our Trend & Tradition column explores the return of rich neutrals and dark woods, a look that captures the warmth and cozy elegance we all crave this time of year. And in For the Love, Terry Lea reminds us that even something as simple as a relish dish can bring people together around the table.

We've also filled this issue with cozy kitchen inspiration, just in time for holiday gatherings. You'll find a few vintage dessert favorites—Creamy Pumpkin Pie and Coca Cola Salad Dessert—along with a couple of apple recipes that fill the house with that unmistakable fall scent. And if you're feeding a crowd, don't miss our shareable baked spaghetti with its extra special ingredient: cream cheese. (Doesn't cream cheese just make everything better?)

As you plan your holiday outings, we hope you'll visit the small businesses and events featured in these pages and others in your community. There's something special about discovering a new favorite shop or market, especially when you can share it with family and friends visiting for the holidays. We've seen firsthand this year just how unique each of these stores and events are—each one filled with its own stories, personality and charm. And we can just about guarantee your guests will head home talking about that amazing little place they stumbled upon during their trip.

Every visit, every purchase and every friendly exchange helps keep the heart of our towns beating strong. When we support these small shops, we're not only finding gifts and treasures—we're investing in the communities that make our corner of the world such a wonderful place to call home.

We hope you have a wonderfully blessed Thanksgiving!

RECIPE: Million Dollar Spaghetti

1 lb spaghetti noodles
1 lb ground beef
3 T dried minced onion
2 cloves garlic, minced
½ t salt • ½ t pepper
6 c marinara sauce, divided
8 oz cream cheese, softened
3 c mozzarella cheese, shredded, divided

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cook spaghetti noodles according to package. While the noodles are cooking, brown ground beef with the dried onions, garlic, salt and pepper on high. Drain liquid and mix in one cup of marinara sauce. Combine cooked spaghetti with the remaining 5 cups of marinara sauce. Mix cream cheese and 2 cups of mozzarella cheese in a bowl. Add half the pasta and sauce mixture to the bottom of a 9x13 inch pan. Add the cream cheese mixture. Top with remaining pasta/sauce mixture. Add the meat/sauce mixture on top of the pasta and top with remaining cup of mozzarella cheese. Cover and bake for 30 minutes. Uncover and bake for an additional 10 minutes until cheese is melted. Let cool for 5-10 minutes, then cut into squares to serve.

TENNESSEE MILITARY COLLECTORS ASSOCIATION FALL SHOW: NOV. 28 & 29

Many antique store owners will tell you that military artifacts are among the most highly sought-after items in their booths and showcases. “We don’t have enough of them—and when we do have them, they just don’t stay long,” one veteran dealer says. “Relics from all time periods and countries appeal to many customers who have an interest in history or are fascinated by the souvenirs soldiers brought home.”

Where do dealers find these rare treasures? Some scour yard and estate sales, while others spend hours browsing online. But the single best opportunity to find all types of military relics is at a Tennessee Military Collectors Association (TMCA) Show, always conducted Thanksgiving and Easter weekends in Middle Tennessee. The next TMCA show is set for November 28 and 29, 2025, at the Cool Springs Marriott in Williamson County.

TMCA President Jimmy Howell calls the event a “multi-opportunity” experience where visitors “can buy or sell military relics, obtain information and appraisals, or just enjoy being in a museum-type atmosphere.”

“TMCA was founded fifty years ago as a non-profit organization to honor veterans, preserve military artifacts and provide opportunities for people to see or collect these items,” Howell says. “Our Fall Show will be open to the public from noon to 6pm Friday, November 28, and 8am to 3pm Saturday, November 29, at the Cool Springs Marriott in Williamson County. Admission is free for Junior ROTC and Scout members in uniform, children under 15 (with a parent) and active-duty military, police and fire department members. For all others, admission is $5.”

Thousands of historic items will be on display, for sale or for trade at the show, including uniforms, medals, badges, photos, swords, daggers, vintage military weapons, flags, helmets, insignia, radios, cameras, binoculars, books, paper artifacts, home front collectibles and more. Weather permitting, WW II-era military vehicles may also be on display in the Marriott parking lot. (Modern weapons are not permitted to be sold or brought into the show.)

riods,” Howell says. “This will be a family-friendly event where guests can start or expand a collection of militaria with items in all price ranges, talk with militaria experts or simply enjoy seeing and touching military pieces. We will also have multiple drawings to give away TMCA wearables.”

Howell adds that many visitors bring military items they have inherited from a relative or friend and want more information about. “Fortunately,” he says, “we have many nationally respected subject matter experts who can provide valuable details about the purpose of an item and how, when and where it may have been used. It is a pleasure for us to provide historical background information and offer advice on how to preserve important relics.”

The Cool Springs Marriott is located at 700 Cool Springs Blvd., Franklin, approximately 10 minutes from Nashville. Parking is free. Each year, TMCA uses show proceeds and member donations to support Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps programs at Middle Tennessee schools, as well as veterans’ initiatives, including recent gifts to Operation Stand Down Tennessee and Honor Flight of Middle Tennessee.

FOUR SISTERS ANTIQUES:

A Place Where Family, Faith & Community Come Together

When you walk through the doors of Four Sisters Antiques & Vintage in Murfreesboro, you notice right away

it's not just another antique store. There's warmth here, the kind that feels like home. That's no accident—owner Dawn Goodman built this place with family and memory at its heart.

Dawn dedicated the shop to her oldest sister, Debbie, who loved antiques but passed away from breast cancer in 2016. "Naming it Four Sisters was my way of honoring all my sisters," Dawn said. One of them even has her own booth inside—Velvet Underground—which has become a customer favorite.

What started with 40 dealers has now grown to 93 strong, each bringing unique treasures and styles under one roof. From timeless antiques to eclectic vintage finds, the shop has quickly become a destination stop just one mile from the Murfreesboro Square.

Four Sisters is marking its second anniversary this November, and despite their young age, the milestones are already adding up. Last year, they won the Main Street Award for Best Antique Store, and just last month they took home a Ruthie's Community's Choice Award.

Dawn is quick to point to what she believes has made the difference: faith and gratitude. "I thank God for all the success," she said. She also expressed deep appreciation for Murfreesboro residents: "the support from the Murfreesboro community has been remarkable." She wants readers and customers to know how much their loyalty means to her.

The next few weeks will be busy ones at Four Sisters, and Dawn is making sure the celebrations feel special:

- Nov 8-9: Second Anniversary Party with cake, refreshments, and giveaways (including gift certificates).
- Nov 28: A Black Friday blowout, with extended hours from 7am to 5 pm.

• Nov 29-30: Weekend sales in honor of Small Business Saturday.

• Dec 5-7: The Christmas Open House, with Santa himself opening the doors on Friday at 2pm to welcome shoppers. Expect giveaways, sales, and plenty of holiday cheer. (Hint: you may want to line up early for this one!)

As the second anniversary approaches, Dawn is inviting the community to come celebrate—not just the store's success, but the friendships and stories that have grown within its walls. Whether you're a seasoned collector or simply looking for a place that feels like home, Four Sisters Antiques & Vintage offers a warm welcome, a treasure around every corner, and the joy of shopping small.

You can find Four Sisters Antiques & Vintage at 1056 Seals Way in Murfreesboro, Tennessee. They are open daily and also ship nationwide to make finding your next treasure easy.

FOR THE LOVE OF RELISH DISHES

by Terry Lea, Murfreesboro, Tennessee

The holiday season has arrived, and for most of us that means parties featuring all kinds of foods. Many of them will feature a vegetable tray—raw crudités or perhaps pickled vegetables... aka, “relishes.” Of course, these nibbles can be piled on a board, a platter or a plate, but what if you had a special dish (or several dishes) just for them?

The origins of relishes and relish dishes aren’t a chicken-and-egg question: the relishes definitely came first and the specialized dishes came later—and they’ve evolved a bit over time.

First, let’s define our terminology. A relish is a preserve of finely chopped vegetables or fruit (or both) pickled in a vinegar sauce. The oldest known relish originated in India (think chutney), dating back at least 1,500 years. By the 1700s, Europeans had developed a fondness for chutneys and gave these pickled foods a new name. The term “relish” is Old French and loosely translated means “something remaining,” referring to a lingering, enjoyable taste or flavor.

In the 1800s, well-to-do hostesses showed off their pickled foods in “castors”—glass jars fitted into metal holders that allowed pickled vegetables to be displayed and served, typically with special forks or tongs. Around the same time, celery vases became fashionable, holding stalks of the exotic vegetable as edible centerpieces, signaling a family’s wealth and good taste to offer such an expensive, perishable vegetable on their table. A diagram from the March 1859 issue of Godey’s Lady’s Book shows the place of honor reserved for the celery vase and pickle castor.

During this era, relishes of chopped mixed vegetables became a popular way to preserve and serve garden surplus. Here in the South, chowchow is still a popular condiment with a sweet/tangy flavor. In 1888, the Heinz Company introduced “piccalilli,” a sour relish, but it was never as popular as the sweet relish they introduced the following year. Originally called “India Relish,” today it’s known simply as “pickle relish” and you’ll find it next to the ketchup and mustard dispensers wherever hot dogs are sold.

Also during this same time period, pressed glass entered the scene as a new trend for tableware, with large sets of matching patterns allowing even modest households to create a coordinated buffet or table service for entertaining. Known today as Early American Pressed Glass (or EAPG), these dishes started out clear with simple geometric patterns. Over time, colored glass and more fanciful designs were added. Around the same time, bright colorful dishes such as Fiesta ware rose in popularity among the middle class.

In the early 1900s, we broadened the term “relish dish” to include a wide assortment of pickled and fresh vegetables, and by the 1930s, “relish dishes” were offered in various shapes including round shallow bowls as well as plates and platters. Divided relish dishes gave hostesses the ability to create a dizzying array of delicacies while keeping their flavors from mingling. Fiesta ware’s divided relish tray with interchangeable compartments is now a much-sought-after item among collectors; don’t be surprised to find them offered for $500–$1,000 depending on condition and color.

America’s love of piquant spreads led to the rise in popularity of relish trays served at steak-houses and supper clubs in the 1930s and ’40s, especially in the upper Midwest. Diners had an assortment of tasty appetizers to nosh on while waiting on their entrées. The popularity of relish tray dishes persisted through the 1970s when the food landscape was altered by the rise of frozen and processed foods. (We fully support bringing back the fancy relish tray along with dressing up for an evening out at a supper club with a floor show and orchestra.)

So what makes the perfect relish tray? Opinions vary, but here are the four main components that comprise a traditional relish tray:

1. Pickled vegetables are the main stars: olives, pickled baby corn and of course pickles—tiny gherkins or other pickled cucumbers are always solid choices, but for variety, consider adding pickled mushrooms, onions or beets.

2. Fresh vegetables are a matter of personal taste, but typical options include green onions, carrots, broccoli, radishes and celery as mainstays.

3. Spreads and dips are also traditional—from duck or chicken liver pâté to beer cheese or vinaigrettes with fresh minced herbs. More modern renditions may include spinach dip, ranch or bleu cheese dressing.

4. Crackers, small rye bread slices, pretzels or pita chips offer a nice crunchy complement to the rest of the ingredients.

Where to Find Relish Dishes

As with most throwback vintage items, you’ll find antique castors, celery vases and divided relish trays in all shapes and sizes at thrift stores, estate sales and antique shops. Look for dishes that will complement your other serving pieces—or that just speak to you and say, “Take me home and make me pretty.” Look them over for chips, nicks and cracks before buying, especially if you plan to use them.

Caring for Pressed Glass Dishes

Hand washing and drying are important for all vintage glassware. Between uses, store pieces in a cabinet or hutch where they are protected from direct sunlight and the risk of breaking. But do use them—as often as possible, especially during the holiday season.

Other Uses for Divided Relish Dishes

Relish trays aren’t limited to the dining room. The compartments make excellent organizers for small desk items as well as jewelry trays, makeup organizers on a vanity or as an under-tray for soap dispensers. So whether you use yours for serving an appetizer course of pickled foods to your guests or for more mundane tasks, we hope you’ll find a way to incorporate them into your daily life.

Terry Lea and Sherri Brown were flea-market-going friends before they made their shared hobby into a full-fledged business by opening Re-Invintage in Murfreesboro, Tenn. Be sure to check out all their fantastic finds at 3781 Franklin Rd., Murfreesboro, TN.

HOLIDAY HAPPENINGS IN FRANKLIN COUNTY, TN

by Diana Lamb, Winchester, Tennessee

There's no shortage of festive fun in Franklin County this holiday season! November and December are packed with markets, parades, and shopping destinations to help you find unique gifts and get in the Christmas spirit. Here's just a glimpse of what's coming—every weekend offers something new to enjoy!

Bennett's Pharmacy is your first stop for Christmas shopping. Family owned since 1958, Bennett's offers unique ornaments and gifts you won't find anywhere else—Vera Bradley, Simply Southern, Willow Tree, and great finds for new moms and newborns. You'll discover gifts for everyone on your list, plus an old-fashioned soda fountain serving chili, grilled cheese, breakfast, and more. Be sure to tell Lisa Wallace you saw her ad in Busy Bee Trader and use the coupon to save 10% on their signature Bloody Marty.

The Southern Tennessee Ladies Society (STLS) Holiday Market returns Friday, November 7, and Saturday, November 8. This annual crafts and specialties show is free to attend, and proceeds fund scholarships for local students. The event is located at the Franklin County Annex Building and also features delicious homemade soups and baked goods—always a highlight! You'll find an array of holiday décor and one-of-a-kind gifts at 839 Dinah Shore Blvd in Winchester, TN. Don't miss it!

Plan a visit to The Artisan Depot Gallery and Gift Shop in Cowan, where new exhibits, classes, and receptions are always in the works.

The gallery is open Thursday through Sunday, 12-5pm. Many Franklin County Arts Guild members will also participate in the Annual Holiday Studio Tour, held December 6-7 at the University of the South in Sewanee, so be sure to check the Studio Tour website for details.

For the creative types on your list, stop by Mooney's Market and Emporium in Monteagle. Crafters and knitters will love their selection of fine yarns, books, needles, and kits. Beyond that, Mooney's is filled with antiques, collectibles, homeopathic remedies, artisan goods, and quirky new age gifts—a true treasure trove for everyone.

And don't forget Mae's in Estill Springs, the place to find "it" when you can't find it anywhere else! From theme party supplies and educational toys to kitchen gadgets and exotic foods, Mae's is full of surprises. Their popular $5 and $10 mystery bags are a shopper's delight—guaranteed value and often much more inside! You'll also find shelves of hardware, home renovation items, auto accessories, and tech gadgets, all at bargain prices.

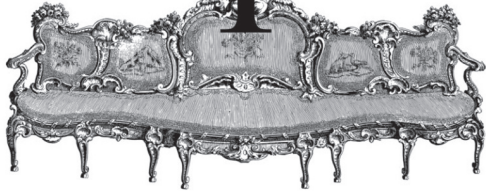

As the holidays approach, mark your calendar for Cowan's Annual Christmas Market and Parade, happening Friday, December 5 from 5-8pm and Saturday, December 6 from 10am-4pm. The market will feature pictures with Santa and other special guests, crafts, games, vendors, live music, and more! The Cowan Christmas Parade begins Saturday at 1pm and promises plenty of small-town charm to get you in the holiday spirit.

These are just a few of the holiday happenings in Franklin County this season. Be sure to explore them all—and while you're out and about, support the wonderful local businesses and advertisers you'll find in Busy Bee Trader!

TREND & TRADITION

Rich Warm Neutrals & Dark Woods: A Cozy Antique Comeback

Each month in “Trend & Tradition,” we explore the styles making a comeback—or sticking around for good—in the world of antique and vintage décor. Whether it’s a classic piece getting a modern twist or a fresh way to style a timeworn favorite, we’ll show you how old and new can live beautifully together.

As the days grow shorter and gatherings move indoors, design naturally shifts toward comfort and warmth. That’s why rich neutral tones paired with dark, polished woods are striking such a chord right now. Think chestnut dining tables ready for family feasts, walnut cabinets holding treasured dishes and deep oak chairs pulled up by the fire... all softened by shades of caramel, taupe and sand. This timeless pairing is showing up in antique shops and vendor markets everywhere, and it’s the perfect way to make your home feel cozy and inviting for the season ahead.

So Why Warm Neutrals and Dark Woods?

This design pairing isn’t new, it’s rooted in centuries of tradition. From Victorian sideboards to mid-century walnut credenzas, deep wood tones have always signaled craftsmanship and permanence. When combined with today’s preference for earthy neutrals, the look feels grounded and fresh, not dated. The richness of wood provides depth, while warm neutrals soften the room, creating spaces that are elegant, livable and perfect for entertaining.

What to Look for While You Shop

As you browse antique malls or vendor markets this fall, keep your eye out for these seasonal standouts:

Honey Bee Vintage

Gaslamp Antiques

Vintage South Marketplace

sonal standouts:

- Sturdy wood furniture in walnut, mahogany, oak or cherry
- Neutral upholstered seating—linen, cotton or even worn leather in caramel and tan tones
- Antique chests, sideboards or cabinets with original dark finishes

- Accessories like brass candlesticks, ceramic pottery or woven baskets in natural shades

A little patina is part of the charm—don’t be afraid of scratches or wear. Dark woods often look even better with age, and a simple polish or touch-up can bring them back to life in time for the holidays.

Easy Ways to Bring This Look Home

Want to try the trend without redoing your whole house before company comes over? Start small with these easy steps:

- Anchor your dining room with a single dark wood piece, like a table or buffet.
- Layer in cozy textures: a woven throw, a neutral rug or soft pillows in warm beige or terracotta.
- Balance the dark with light: pair a walnut desk with cream walls or a taupe slipcovered chair.
- Accessorize with seasonal touches—brass candlesticks, a vintage serving bowl or pottery filled with fall greenery.

Where to Hunt

From seasonal antique shows to your favorite vendor markets, dark wood antiques are everywhere—you just need a discerning eye. Look for well-crafted, solid wood pieces that stand the test of time, even if they show a little wear. Busy Bee Trader advertisers feature booths and shops full of these classic treasures, perfect for holiday gatherings. We’ve included a few photos from their social media pages as examples, with each store credited at the bottom of the image.

So, as you prepare your home for Thanksgiving and the cozy season ahead, lean into the warmth. These rich tones and neutral layers will create a home that feels welcoming, stylish and ready to celebrate.

What's The Buzz About Honey Bees?

by Shannon Ingram, Cleveland, Tennessee

November brings the beginning of cold temperatures. Honeybees are all about survival of the colony and protecting their queen, because without the queen, the colony will die. During late fall and winter, there are no resources coming in such as pollen or nectar, so the bees prepare to survive the winter on what they've stored in their comb.

Fun Honeybee Fall and Winter Facts

In October the bees have already begun kicking out the drones! Drones are male bees. They don't have jobs in the winter like their sisters, known as worker bees. As the bees settle in for winter, the drones become unnecessary mouths to feed, so they are evicted and left to live the remainder of their days outside the hive. Not to worry—in the spring, the queen will lay new drone eggs. She determines the sex of every bee based on the needs of the colony that season.

Goldenrod is a crucial resource for all pollinators in November. Fall provides very few blooming plants after a long summer dearth, making goldenrod a vital late-season food source.

Through the fall, the queen lays eggs that will become winter bees. These bees have a different physiology—they are fatter bees, capable of living up to six months versus 45 days like the typical worker bees. Their job is to generate heat to keep the area around the queen at the necessary 90–95 degrees.

Honeybees don't hibernate—they cluster. They form a ball of solid bees around the queen to keep her at a constant 90–95 degrees. They don't heat the whole hive, just the area of the cluster. As they need food, they will work the cluster through the hive. However, if the honey stores are just out of reach, the colony may starve rather than break formation and risk the queen's safety.

Honeybees generate their own water to drink through the winter. The heat generated inside creates condensation against the cold walls of the hive, giving them a source of moisture to drink.

Bees poop! On warmer winter days, honeybees will do "cleansing" flights to relieve themselves outside the hive. Have you ever noticed little yellow dots on your car? Yep, bee poop! Bees will not poop in the hive.

VINTAGE RECIPE: Creamy Pumpkin Pie

1 c canned pumpkin
1 pkg instant vanilla pudding mix
¼ t nutmeg
¼ t cinnamon
¼ t ginger
2/3 c milk

1 envelope Dream Whip

1 9 or 10 inch graham cracker or baked pie shell

Combine pumpkin, pudding mix, spices and milk; beat with beater until creamy. Prepare Dream Whip according to package directions. Reserve small amount of Dream Whip; fold remaining Dream Whip into pumpkin mixture. Pour into pie crust. Chill for 30 minutes to 1 hour. Serve topped with reserved Dream Whip. Yield: 6 servings.
